

August 13, 2010

To who in may concern,

When I started my second year as a business major at Utah State University I realized the need to have real world business experience. What college graduate stands a chance in today's workforce with nothing to show but a diploma? The answer is NOTHING! I was very excited when I was approached by College Works Painting. At first I was reluctant about joining a painting company to gain experience. Then I learned how many aspects of business they would train and help me to become proficient in. During an eight month period I learned important marketing, sales, and management techniques which are irreplaceable. This internship was critical in helping me form an outlook on the world of business and entrepreneurship. This is a difficult learning experience however, with perseverance you will be able to reach your goals and start your way along your own path to success.

Good luck!

Chad Knowles

Intern

Utah State University